Congressional Chronicle

The political landscape has changed with the 114th Congress. Not only are there 43 new Republicans and 15 new Democrats in the House, and 12 new Republicans and one new Democrat in the Senate, there's also 108 women in Congress, including the first African-American Republican in the House, and the first woman veteran in the Senate. Keep track of the Members of Congress using Congressional Chronicle on c-span.org. The Congressional Chronicle page has lots of useful information there including voting results and statistics about each session of Congress on C-SPAN, C-SPAN2, C-SPAN Radio, and c-span.org.

C-SPAN was launched in 1979 to provide live, gavel-to-gavel coverage of the U.S. House of Representatives.

C-SPAN2 was created in 1986 to provide live, gavel-to-gavel coverage of the U.S. Senate.

C-SPAN3, launched in 2001, provides another choice in public affairs programming.

The C-SPAN networks were created by the cable industry and are offered as a public service to provide access to balanced, commercial-free coverage of the American political process. The networks are privately funded by the cable industry, without government or taxpayer support. And now all three networks are available in HD.
